REQUIRED SIGNATURES

The author(s), in consideration of the acceptance of the above work for publication, does hereby assign and transfer to the American Society for Nutrition (ASN) all of the rights, title and interest in and to the copyright of the above titled work in its current form, including online supporting material (data supplements) submitted with the work, and in any form subsequently revised for publication and/or electronic dissemination, including translations to another language. This includes display of the accepted article and online supporting material in electronic form on the internet before and/or after print publication. For U.S. Government authors, the provision applies only to the extent that copyright is transferable.

Authorship Responsibility: the undersigned hereby affirm:

- (a) This manuscript represents original, unpublished material that is not under editorial consideration elsewhere, in whole or in part other than in abstract form.
- (b) The article and this submission form identify all co-authors who have substantially contributed to the concept, data collection and analysis, or preparation of the manuscript and therefore who may have intellectual property claims to the content.
- (c) All authors have read and approved the manuscript as submitted and are prepared to take public responsibility for the work.
- (d) The author has identified in a footnote to the title all sources of funding relating to the research reported in this submission.
- (e) Any existing financial arrangements between an author and a company whose product figures prominently in the submitted manuscript have been brought to the attention of the editor in the cover letter and have been disclosed in a footnote on the manuscript title page.
- (f) Financial or other contractual agreements that might cause conflicts of interest or be perceived as causing conflicts of interest have been brought to the attention of the editor in the cover letter and have been disclosed in a footnote on the manuscript title page.
- (g) The manuscript contains no material that would violate the copyright or any other right of any other person. The authors will obtain and include with the manuscript written permission from any respective copyright owners for the use of any textual, illustrative, or tabular materials that have been previously published or are otherwise copyrighted and owned by third parties. The copyrighted material is clearly identified and copyright ownership acknowledged within the text.
- (h) The undersigned attest that those individuals or institutions in the Acknowledgments or Personal Communications are aware that their names appear.
- (i) If portions of this manuscript other than the abstract have been posted on the Internet, the following information has been provided on a separate page with this submission: date of posting and url, data or portion of manuscript posted

- (j) All authors understand that material submitted to The Journal of Nutrition is embargoed until three days prior to the mailing date of The Journal of Nutrition issue in which it appears. Embargoed information is not to be made public in any format, including print, television, radio, or via the Internet, before the embargo date. ASN reserves the right to halt the consideration or publication of a paper if this condition is broken.

Rights of Authors and The Journal of Nutrition Embargo Policy: please see Part 3.

Charges to authors: Authors will be charged a $75.00 manuscript submission fee upon submission. The manuscript submission fee is waived when the corresponding author is a member of the American Society for Nutrition. Authors will be billed for the following items: color reproduction costs ($400/figure), author alterations to manuscript proofs, reprints, and page charges of $75/page for the first seven pages, $120 per page for pages eight and above. For information on waivers on page charges and manuscript submission fees, please consult The Journal of Nutrition Instructions for Authors, www.jn.nutrition.org.

This form must be signed by all authors. If the manuscript is a “work made for hire” (a work prepared by an employee of an organization acting within the scope of his or her employment), the form should be signed by an authorized representative of the employer as well as the author. It is acceptable to photocopy and sign separate copies of this form. Use additional pages if necessary.

Part 2. New Authorship: all authors must sign below agreeing to the new changes in authorship.

Part 3. Rights of Authors: effective upon acceptance for publication, the American Society for Nutrition hereby licenses the following nonexclusive rights back to authors:

- a. Patent and trademark rights to any process or procedure described in the article
- b. The right to photocopy or make single electronic copies of the article for their own personal use, including for their own classroom use, or for the personal use of colleagues, provided the copies are not offered for sale and are not distributed in a systematic way outside of their employing institution (e.g. via an email list or public file server). Posting of the article on a secure network (not accessible to the public) within the author’s institution is permitted.
- c. The right, subsequent to publication, to use the article or any part thereof free of charge in a printed compilation of works of their own, such as collected writings, theses or lecture notes; to reuse original figures and tables in future works; to present data from your paper at a meeting or conference; to include your article in your thesis or dissertation.
- d. The right to reproduce reasonable print quantities for personal use for purposes other than those outlined in (b) if 100 reprints are purchased
- e. Authors may post a link on a personal website that directs readers to the article on The Journal of Nutrition website (www.jn.nutrition.org); full text of the final, published article can not be posted on personal or institutional websites or repositories that are accessible to the public.
- f. For Works created under a grant from the NIH and accepted for publication after May 2, 2005: The principal investigators (PIs) of NIH-funded research grants that support work published in peer-reviewed journals have been asked to comply with a new NIH policy to deposit any accepted manuscripts on the PubMed Central website. Since the JN owns copyright to all manuscripts published in the JN per the agreement signed on submission of the manuscript, we grant the PI permission to deposit this accepted manuscript in PubMed Central according to the NIH request, with the stipulation that the PI accepts any liability that may arise through release of the manuscript in its present form. To avoid this potential liability, the JN suggests that the PI delay submission of this manuscript to PubMed Central until our publication office has completed all required copyediting within the next several months. At that point, the corresponding author will be provided with a finished PDF version that will represent the material to be published in the JN. Provision of the final PDF version to PubMed Central will avoid all ambiguity that could otherwise result from the presence of one incomplete and the other complete copy of the manuscript.

If the PI decides to submit the unedited version of the manuscript, a further stipulation to the release of the manuscript to the NIH is that it must contain the following statement at the top of the title page: "This is an uncopyedited author manuscript that has been accepted for publication in The Journal of Nutrition, copyright American Society for Nutrition (ASN). This manuscript may not be duplicated or reproduced, other than for personal use or within the rule of 'Fair Use of Copyrighted Materials' (section 107, Title 17, US Code) without permission of the copyright owner, the ASN. The final copyedited article, which is the version of record, can be found at <http://jn.nutrition.org/>. The ASN disclaims any responsibility or liability for errors or omissions in this version of the manuscript or in any version derived from it by the National Institutes of Health or other parties."

Regardless of whether the un-copyedited version or the copyedited, final version of the manuscript is submitted to the NIH, the PI must abide by the JN policy of making articles free online on our website as well as in the NIH repository 12 months after publication. This will satisfy both the JN and NIH policies.

The Journal of Nutrition Embargo Policy

- a. Manuscripts published in The Journal of Nutrition are embargoed until three days prior to the mailing date of The Journal of Nutrition issue in which it appears. Embargoed information is not to be made public in any format including print, television, radio, or via internet, before the embargo date.
- b. Authors with papers in production at JN may speak with the press about their work, provided reporters understand and agree to the JN embargo policy.
- c. Authors should not participate in news conferences until the day of publication.
- d. Authors can present results reported in forthcoming JN papers to colleagues at professional meetings. We ask that authors not give copies of the paper, data, overheads or slides to reporters.
- e. ASN reserves the right to halt the consideration or publication of a paper if this condition is broken.
